Note : This form is lifted from the original procedures in the use of computer laboratories/facilities. In case a situation arise not listed herein the main document is still the main reference. This summary was produced so that we will not print too many copies that do not concern students.

1. Computer teacher shall spend the first day of class discussing the rules and regulation inside the laboratory and the appropriate sanctions for these violations.
2. A faculty member is responsible in the supervision of the students in the proper use of the computer facilities, the cleanliness and orderliness of the laboratory. He/she shall report to the authorities concerned any violations student has committed.
3. Faculty members shall see to it that the waiver forms on the use of computer units by the students have been properly accomplished. They shall also discuss this waiver and see to it that students understand its contents. The waiver form shall be distributed to the students on the first week of classes.
4. Before the start of each class, faculty members shall see to it that they have signed the logbook for computer laboratory keys and spend 5 minutes of their time in reminding the students about the policy inside the computer laboratories to avoid violations.
5. Teachers handling the last computer class shall turn off main switch. This rule also applies if the computer laboratory is vacant for the succeeding hour. Teacher should also find time to check if there are computer units still on after each class.
6. Students are not allowed to stay inside the computer laboratories without the supervision of the teacher in charge.
7. Bringing of foods or drinks inside the laboratory shall be strictly prohibited.
8. Students shall use pencil in the Computer Laboratory. Ballpens, markers or any other writing instruments shall not be allowed inside the computer laboratory.
